Southern Railway Reorganizes
Agricultural Service to Aid
Farmers of South

Washington, June 24.—With a view to making the agricultural service of Southern Railway company and its associated companies more helpful to the farmers of the south, President Harrison has made a complete reorganization of the service to go into effect on July 1.

With the extension of the farm demonstration work of the United States department of agriculture and of the states and the appointments of demonstration agents in most of the counties traversed by the lines of the companies there is not the broad field for railroad agricultural demonstration work that existed when this service was inaugurated by Southern Railway company in 1910, when there were very few government agents in the field. There is now, however, a broad field for helpful work in connection with the marketing of the products of southern farms, especially in localities in which farmers without experience in selling anything but cotton are going into diversified farming and especially in aiding small producers to consolidate their products and market co-operatively.

Since January 1, 1913, the companies have maintained market agents at Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Atlanta for the purpose of finding markets for southern products and bringing buyers into touch with the producers. This service is now to be greatly strengthened. A farm products agency is to be substituted for the market agency at Atlanta, with Mr. Roland Turner, now agricultural agent at Birmingham, Ala., as chief farm products agent. The present agricultural field agents of the company, ten in number, will be appointed farm products agents, reporting to Mr. Turner.

The market agents at Washington, Cincinnati and St. Louis will compile and promulgate as to markets, including quantities, varieties, grades and prices desired for different markets and as to freight rates and facilities. This information will be promulgated to producers through the farm products agency or direct, as circumstances may require. The market agents will also compile and promulgate to buyers information as to products for sale. The chief farm products agent and the farm products in localities and forward detailed information to the market agents. They will pay attention to the various varieties, grades and prices required for different markets and will give special attention to "marketing small producers" to organize co-operative marketing. The market agents and farm products agents will work in close cooperation with the bureau of agricultural and rural organization in the United States department of agriculture and with the state agricultural societies.

STATE'S POLICY OF EDUCATION IS SHOWN BY ANDERSON SYSTEM

Head of State Schools Tells What Statute Allowing Tax Levy Has Done

State Superintendent of Education J. B. Swearingen, here yesterday with the state candidates, and who addressed the meeting held at Buena Vista park, gave out the following statement as to the educational work that is being done in Anderson county, stating that the system of this county clearly illustrates the state's educational policy.

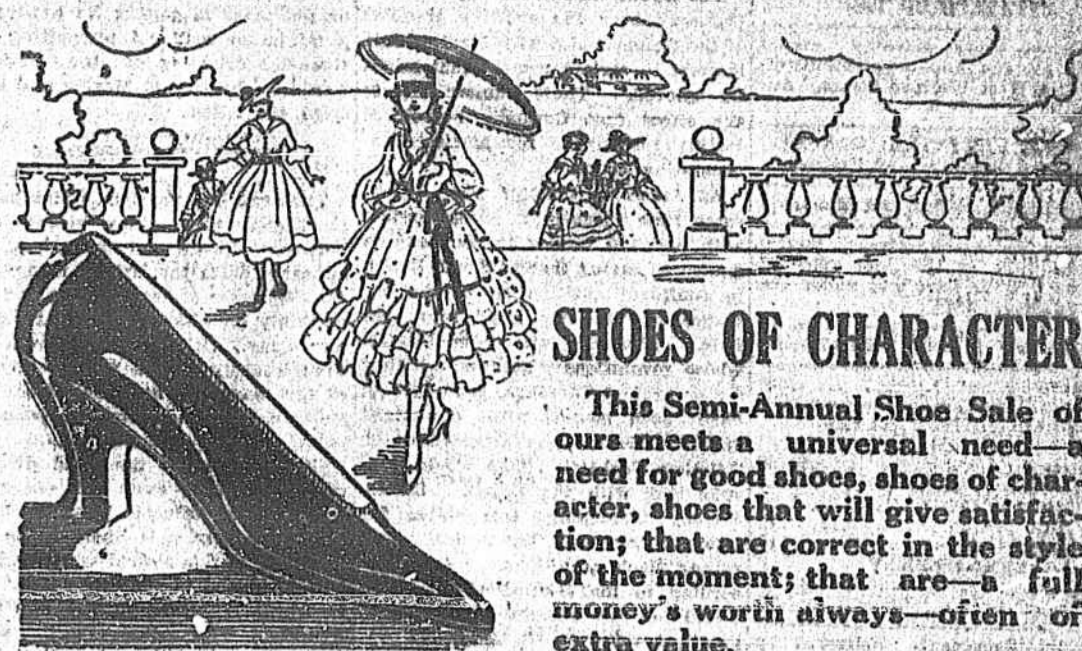

"The state's educational policy is clearly illustrated by the Anderson county school system. The principles involved are based on the constitutional position levying the three mill tax, and on the legislative appropriations for extension, rural graded schools, high schools, buildings, and the continuing fund which seeks to equalize public school facilities among the various districts.

"In 1912 the legislature appropriated $15,000 for rural graded schools. Opponents of the policy declared that farmers would not approve such schools and would not send their children. The growth of these rural graded schools required a legislative appropriation of $11,000 in 1916, and even after this payment fifty-six applications remained to be approved and paid from the equalizing fund. The number of rural graded schools now is 562. Anderson county maintains 23 and is planning for four or five more during the school year 1916-1917. This growth will demand an increased appropriation. In every instance the taxpayers of the district have voted a local levy of 4 mills or more. They cannot run their schools without state aid, and the rural graded school appropriation in 1917 ought to be at least $175,000.

High Schools.
"After eight years of discussion the legislature at its 1916 session enacted a new high school law which means better facilities for the high school pupils of Anderson county. This new law removes the county limit of $2,000 which could be paid from the state treasury to any one county. The new act also opens the court house school in its eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh grades to country boys and girls desiring high school training. Several country districts sought to maintain high schools under the former high school law, White Plains, Walker-McElroy, Ebenezer and other communities have found it more beneficial and desirable to operate rural graded schools with three or four teachers than to carry the burden of the high school. This change enables the principal to teach more grades and more classes, thereby reducing the expense to tax payers and at the same time increasing the efficiency of the school.

"To carry out this high school policy the state appropriated $70,000 in 1916. The new improvement and enlargement required at least $100,000. The legislature in 1917 will be asked for this amount. It will be expended in the various districts by the local trustees. It will be used to improve the teaching corps and the standard of the local school. The increased appropriation will in no case mean increased salary for teachers, although better salaries for competent teachers ought to be provided. The question is too important to be overlooked by the friends of education.

"Two-thirds of the district of Anderson county will be directly benefited by the state's educational policy with the regard to rural graded school and high school. The present facilities cannot be maintained if the money is not provided. The Piedmont Counties have thousands of pupils, the state is interested in maintaining equal facilities in each of the forty-five counties. The money per child in Anderson county last year was a fraction above twelve dollars. The average for the state was sixteen dollars. The highest in any one county was thirty-nine dollars. Is it wise to have this broad difference? State aid ought to be based on local self help and cooperation as the law now provides. People desiring a better school are willing to help pay for it, every new building in Anderson county is an evidence of this truth. The state cannot raise money except by taxation. The one mill state school tax of 1913 was secured only after a long fight. It was not devised in 1913 because of reactionary opposition from many quarters. But the legislature of 1916 provided $800,000 for public schools. The country people have shown their appreciation by using the money. The country boys and girls ought not to be deprived of these broader opportunities, but their maintenance will require at least $100,000,000 from the state treasury. The question is one of principle and of state policy. The voters and tax payers of Anderson county are given these facts in order to help them to this presentation of the issue.
